Learning for life, Learning for work.

Dear Parent/Carer,

There has been a buzz around reading this week in school as we hosted a Scholastic book fair. Thank you to Ms Dawkins for organising this event. Students had the opportunity to purchase books that caught their interest from a wide selection of exciting titles. Each class got to browse the collection and select texts to take home. The book fair generated huge excitement and students were keen to buy books for pleasure which shows that they are catching the reading bug! We will be hosting another book fair in the autumn term and students can add to their growing personal library! Reading confidently is the key to success and I can't emphasise enough how reading well unlocks potential, fires the imagination and drives progress. I look forward to hearing how much the learners have enjoyed immersing themselves in their new books.

We have been busy interviewing for new teachers for next academic year and I will be announcing our new appointments in next week's newsletter. I am confident that we have made some outstanding permanent appointments and that the quality of education will continue to rapidly improve and the students will flourish. I want to congratulate Rashford and Akala students in particular for their excellent behaviour and attitudes towards learning during the selection process and the way they treated all the candidates with respect.

Yours sincerely,

Alan Campbell
Head Teacher
